LOCAL NEWS.

"Papa is safe" at the hour of going to press.

Company B. of the Rifles will drill to night.

A horse attached to a coal cart did the runaway act yesterday without hurting anybody.

Manager Bartlett, of the Hawaiian Hotel, intends spreading a free lunch of substantial viands every evening in the bar. The repast will include cold meats, salads, etc., in the best style of the hotel's cookery.

Before the steamer Surprise sailed for Maui yesterday, Mr. A. F. Cooke, President of the Pacific Navigation Company, treated the crew to a "Portuguese luau," in the shape of as many watermelons as they could get away with.

"How it Happened" is a real work of art surmounting a handsome calendar issued by the New England Mutual Life Insurance Co., Boston, Mass., for which Messrs. Castle & Cooke are the local agents. A handsome soldier boy, with officer's straps, is relating to mother, sister and sweetheart, beneath the old elm tree, how he comes to be home from the front with his arm in a sling.

Wednesday night the Portuguese company of the Honolulu Rifles was organized as Company C., with Mr. J. H. Fisher, of Company A. and an excellent, as Captain; Sergeant Meyers, of Company B., First Lieutenant, and J. M. De Vivas, Second Lieutenant—all experienced in military matters. The officers of the battalion will meet this evening to elect a Lieutenant Colonel, as required under the increased number of companies.

A little daughter of Mr. Thomas Wright, who lives at the junction of Fort and Kukui streets, was run over by a hack on the former street yesterday. She had her forehead bruised and other portions of her face scratched, and it was fortunate that she sustained no greater injury. The driver of the carriage, a native, never stopped to see what harm he had done by his careless driving, but drove off as fast as he could. His name is known, however, and it would be a public service to have him brought to book.

Free Lecture.

Those who have heard Prof. Van Slyke's interesting lectures delivered at the College last winter will be glad to know that he can be heard nearer home this evening. He will deliver a lecture in the Y. M. C. A. hall at 7:30 this evening, entitled "The Chemistry of Life and Death," illustrated by experiments. Admission free.

Police Court.

Ah Nging, from the 24th, was at his request further remanded till the 27th, on a charge of selling liquor without license, to which he pleaded not guilty.

Daniel forfeited bail, and Thos. Darrell was fined for drunkenness.

Ah Sang, charged with larceny of a mouthpiece to a pipe, valued at $5, from Ah Seu, was remanded till the 27th.

Civil cases will be heard to-day, Friday, after the criminal docket is passed.

Is it a Prehistoric Coffin?

A telegram to the New York Herald from Kansas City, Mo., April 21, says: A discovery of an extraordinary character was made in the immediate vicinity of this city yesterday morning by workmen engaged in digging a cistern for the residence in course of erection for Mr. I. E. James. The men had excavated about two feet in depth when the tools used struck against some hard substance, and upon removing the earth it was found to be of iron. It was then carefully dug round until discovered to be of about the dimensions of a coffin. The startling find was then completely exhumed and found to be a cast iron receptacle of weight sufficient to tax the strength of four men to lift, fashioned roughly to fit a corpse, the ends being only wide enough to accommodate the head and feet, while near the middle it is as wide as an ordinary coffin at the broadest part. On the upper face it pretty much follows the shape of the human body which it is supposed to contain except that over the face and chest the surface is quite flat, being evidently the seat of the plates which act the part of lids to the novel receptacle. Screws or fins hold the plates in position, but the heads are so rusted that there is no way of opening it without bursting it in some violent manner. The outline is that of the receptacles in which some of the ancient kings have been found encased in some oriental lands.

Smoke the "Wedge," to be found at C. J. McCarthy's.

Marine Mishap.

A strange accident happened to the German bark Hercules about eleven o'clock yesterday morning. She had completed discharging cargo at the wharf east of the Oceanic Steamship Company's, and the crew were washing the coal dust out of the hold with a liberal deluge of sea water. When about three thousand gallons had been pumped in, the water by the rolling of the vessel rushed to the port side. Gradually it caused the bark to careen over on that side, until she was almost square on her beam ends, the yard arms digging into the ground and the port bulwarks being submerged. Most of the sailors were in the hold, but two of them on deck were pitched into the water. Captain Bless was also on deck, but got hold of something and saved himself. The bowsprit of the Hercules fouled on a lumber shed and was broken nearly off. The captain and crew, with other assistance, immediately set to work to right the vessel, but up till knocking off time, five o'clock, had not succeeded. People from all over town flocked to the place as the news of the accident went quickly round, and there was a crowd of spectators on the ground all day. Captain Fuller, harbor master, was rendering all the help he could to Captain Bless, and many others less competent to advise in such a case were ready to show how the bark could be raised, as it were, by a turn of the wrist. The mode adopted to effect the required object was to pass a chain, fastened to the port side, under the keel and up the port side, by hauling on which with powerful tackle it is hoped to bring the craft to her proper position. Something was also done in the way of placing ballast in the hold on the port side.

The Art Lectures.

The second of Prof. Dickinson's course was delivered to an audience of about the same size as attended the first. The views embraced the principal cities of Spain and one or more of the most striking buildings in each, together with a large number of the most famous works of Velasquez and Murillo, concluding with portraits of those artists.

The stereopticon had been removed to a point somewhat nearer the screen, thus increasing the illumination and somewhat improving the focus. Before the commencement of the lecture, Mr. Fuller, General Secretary of the Y. M. C. A., announced that owing to the evening fixed for the next one falling on Decoration Day, a change would be made in the dates of the last two lectures, the particulars of which would be announced hereafter.

STEAMSHIP DISASTER.

Herbert's Steam Launch Breaks Her Shaft At Sea.

Commander Defries Swims Ashore.

Yesterday afternoon about 1 o'clock Mr. Allan Herbert's steam launch sailed from this port for Waianae on a fishing voyage. She was in command of John Defries and manned by four natives and a Chinese engineer. When about nine miles from Honolulu toward Barber's Point, at about 2:30 o'clock, the shaft of the little steamer broke. Defries, after working the vessel to within a quarter of a mile of the shore, with two of the crew stripped and swam ashore through the breakers. The men brought some clothing for him, and he sent them back to take the boat farther out from the breakers and anchor her until he could find relief. Then he started on foot for Puuloa, a distance of three miles. Arriving there he found the Bell telephone out of order, so that he had to procure a horse and ride into town. He arrived here between eight and nine o'clock, and on his report the Minister of the Interior ordered the tug Eleu to the disabled boat.

The tug left in command of Captain Rice, with Defries on board, shortly after midnight. It was not supposed that the boat was in any danger, except in case of a gale springing up, but up to the departure of the Eleu the weather was very calm.

Very Sad Tragedy.

It was published in several of the papers lately that two natives of the New Hebrides, man and wife, had committed suicide near Ookala, Hawaii, by jumping over a precipice. Several days elapsed before their mangled bodies were recovered from a ledge of rocks over the sea, about two hundred feet below the brink from which the terrible leap was taken. Chief Justice Judd, when at Hilo holding the Circuit Court, was informed of the cause of the double suicide. It appears that a son of the simple couple had been arrested for larceny, and some Portuguese told them that the lad was taken to Hilo by the officers to be killed. This malicious and cruel falsehood so worked on the minds of the affectionate parents that they formed and put in execution the fearful plan of self-destruction. When the story was related to the Chief Justice, with the information that the evidence against Sam, the orphaned son, was not very conclusive, His Honor at once ordered that a nolle prosequi be entered in the case. Efforts are being put forth by the authorities to ascertain who the wretches were that so wickedly imposed on the natural affection of the unfortunate father and mother, and if detected they will be prosecuted to the utmost rigor of the law.

All the fixed seats, except two or three end ones, in the main auditorium of the Opera House, were taken for the Amateur Minstrels' performance as fast as they could be marked after the box plan opened yesterday. Intervening spaces were being rapidly filled up in the afternoon with reservations for loose chairs.
